Historic Data Found in Vault

Washington Letters Included Among Rare Items In Collection.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—A treasure of historical documents and rare books, including four original letters by George Washington, has been given up by a dusty vault on the campus of MacAlester college where they have been sealed for half a century.

Disclosure of the find was made by Pres. Charles J. Turck of MacAlester, who said other rare items included an original letter from William Penn, a note written by Abraham Lincoln for a Civil War veteran who was seeking work, and several 15th and 16th century books.

All of the items were found among the 900-volume book collection bequeathed to the college by its first president, Edward Neill, who died in 1893, and who was once a secretarial aid of President Lincoln.

A provision in Neill's will had specified the books were to be kept in storage and away from public use until the college could provide a special memorial room for them.

Unaware of Treasure.

Dr. Turck said that the college, unaware that the collection contained rare books and manuscripts, had delayed providing special quarters for them until this year.

The memorial room was completed recently.

The Washington letters were found by Miss Mabel Franklin, a librarian cataloguing the collection. They cover a period from 1774 to 1796.

Dr. Turck said the "most interesting" letter was one Washington had written while at camp at Cambridge, Mass., August 30, 1775, during the siege of Boston after he had been made commander-in-chief of the Colonial army.

The letter was addressed to Caesar Rodney and Thomas Mc-Kean, and in it Washington commented that he had "endeavoured to pay the best attention in my power to your recommendation of Mr. Parke, by making him an assistant to the quartermaster general."

Washington also expressed regrets that he had been unable to commission more Pennsylvania volunteers "who, at their own expense, have travelled, and now continue here."

Dr. Turck said the other letters were addressed to "the Hon. Geo. W. Fairfax."

Wrote in Detail.

One dated August, 1774, was an itemized account Washington had kept in connection with a sale conducted for him.

In a letter dated Sept. 8, 1794, Washington wrote in detail concerning some legal difficulties Fairfax had encountered in connection with a "Doctr. Savage" estate.

Writing to Fairfax in January, 1796, Washington apparently still was concerned about the legal difficulties which Fairfax was encountering in the "Doctr. Savage" matter, and Washington said he desired that good legal talent be engaged.

"I do not know that more could have been done," he wrote, "than you have attempted to do: but it is exceedingly to be regretted, that villainy, chicanery and every species of delay, should bring justice in such jeopardy, if it is not entirely defeated by them.

"I am of opinion that good policy dictates the propriety of assuring them a handsome fee, or rather a certain percentage if they succeed —nothing if they do not.

"Tryfling fees are thrown away upon a lawyer of any eminence, for they excite no exertion."

Uranium Ore Discovered in Basin of Colorado River

WASHINGTON.—The largest deposits of uranium ore yet found in the United States have been discovered in the Colorado river basin area, a senate source said.

The atomic energy commission, it was learned, has been urged to push development of these deposits in the hope of making the United States independent of foreign supplies.

Uranium is the stuff of which atomic bombs are made. It and thorium are the only naturally occurring elements which can be made to undergo atomic fission in a chain reaction.

Most of the uranium used in this country's two million dollar atomic energy project comes from the Great Bear lake region of northern Canada. Another important source is the Belgian Congo.

Open Windows Induce Colds, Medical Instructor Insists

BOSTON. — If you like to sleep with the bedroom windows wide open, an instructor at Harvard Medical school has a word of advice.

Dr. Theodore L. Badger says don't do it. He says it leads to colds. Instead, he gave the Massachusetts Medical society his own prescription for good sleeping. Here it is:

Air and cool bedroom about 10 minutes before bedtime. Then close the windows. After that, says Dr. Badger, just leave the bedroom doors open no warm air may enter from other parts of the house.

Contouring Reduces Soil and Water Loss

Reclaim Waste Land by Half-Moon Shape Fence

By C. W. GEE

Pioneers who settled Ohio and laid out their fence lines along the true points of the compass would have been shocked by a land transaction which recently took place in Logan county. Morgan Connor deliberately added 1.37 acres to his farm near Bellefontaine, Ohio, in order to make his fence lines crooked.

Having adopted many soil conservation practices recommended by the U. S. soil conservation service, among which were contouring, his yield had been increased. By this method he reduced water run-off and cut soil loss to the minimum.

A fence had been erected on a 32-acre tract along the north side of the Connor farm. The fence ran according to the compass. When Wiley Connor returned from the military forces, father and son decided to reclaim several acres of waste land, which included an old barn lot near the north line and bisected by a small ditch.

Unable to plant the land to berms on the contour because of the straight fence line, the two moved the fence. Now their line fence follows a half-moon shape which would have aroused the horror of the early Ohio settlers. Connor, however, is not concerned with guiding his life and farming activities by the compass. He is concerned with saving his top soil. Two diversion ditches have been constructed and six acres of trees planted.

KNOW YOUR BREED
Minnesota No. 1
By W. J. DRYDEN

Minnesota No. 1 is not a hybrid hog. It is a new strain more highly inbred than most existing breeds. A cross of the Danish Landrace and the Tamworth, matings were first made in 1936 at the University of Minnesota.

The new breed is long bodied and short legged, with a full ham, light shoulder and a light, strong bone. The ears are rather large but thin and of good quality. The breeders have been selected upon the basis of performance, i.e., fertility, survival, rate of growth, economy of gains and body conformation. A new breed, Minnesota No. 2, also is being perfected at Minnesota.

Uncle Sam Says

What would $1,000 to $2,000 have meant to you at age 18 when you came face to face with the problem of fitting yourself for a business, profession or trade? Many youngsters, whose parents 10 years ago began to put aside a little each week for the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds, have the advantage of such a nestegg this summer. You can start today to put your children in the class of "bonded graduates" of 1957—the boys and girls who will have the extra power in the race for success. U. S. Treasury Department

Tough Topkicks Convert G.I. Joe Into Dapper Dan

CHICAGO. — When Hairy Harry became G.I. Joe it turned him into a Dapper Dan, a survey just completed here reveals.

Seeking sharpness, both figurative and literal, the nation's 46 million shavers now use an average of 55 razor blades annually, in contrast to 43 before the war, the survey shows. Army and navy training, which emphasized the daily shave, is considered the major factor responsible for the increase, according to Arthur H. Hogow, vice president of Eversharp company, in announcing results of the survey.

The average doughboy or gob, stimulated by tough topkicks and bellicose bosuns, used an average of 125 blades annually, he pointed out.

This war-born habit of frequent trimming of the underbrush was responsible for skyrocketing sales of razors and blades made by American manufacturers to an all-time high estimated at 80 million dollars during 1946, Hogow said. The total was nearly twice that of the previous record year, 1929, when sales amounting to 42 million dollars were rung up.

National prosperity, which gave the average man more money to spend on his personal appearance, was the second major factor in stimulating the trend toward beardless jowls, the survey indicated. This was expressed not only in more frequent shaving, Rogow pointed out, but in a more carefree attitude toward blades.

Men who squeezed from 8 to 10 shaves from a blade when times were tough now discard them after they have been used an average of 4 times.

Polar Bear Cub Catches Head in Aluminum Keg

NEW YORK — A two-year-old Polar bear cub, frolicking in a Bronx zoo pool before several hundred spectators, made a sharp dive in the direction of a floating aluminum keg and hit the target with such force that its head pierced the thin sheeting.

Scrambling out of the water with the keg, placed in the pool to enliven the water antics of the animals, the cub clawed blindly at the cylinder about its head for an hour before zoo attendants were able to remove it — and then, uninjured, promptly plunged back into the pool.

Dirty Face Is No Offense Under Law, Court Decides

TRENTON, N. J. — To have a dirty face is not a legal offense, the New Jersey Supreme court ruled in clearing "Susan Bower," blonde mystery girl, of a disorderly conduct charge.

Chief Justice Clarence E. Case ruled that the complaint should have been dismissed at the time of the 23-year-old hitch-hiker's arrest in Palisades Park, N. J., last fall. She was convicted and served 40 days of a reduced six-month sentence in jail.

Bat Disturbs Composure Of Ohio Senate Chamber

COLUMBUS. — The senate had bats in its chamber.

One bat, that is, which enlivened proceedings by sudden swoops and swishes past ducking senators.

That quandry was resolved by Sen. Evert E. Addison, who moved to refer it to the conservation committee.

Before facetious action could be taken, a spectator caught the bat and tossed it out the window.

Soil Packing Reduces Productivity of Land

"Plug your soils as you would a watermelon," is the advice of many soil experts. This will give you a chance to see compactions that are holding down yields. Modern heavy equipment and short-sighted cropping practices have robbed the soil of its organic matter and often packed it, according to Middle West Soil Improvement committee. Permanent remedy is regular use of deep-rooted legumes.

Energy Meter Tells Physical Fitness 'IQ'

New Gadget Has Been Developed By Medical Physicist.

SAN FRANCISCO.—A new instrument for measuring physical fitness, one which probably also will be of help in studying circulatory diseases, was announced by Dr. William E. Berg, University of California medical physicist.

The instrument is an adaptation of the thermal conductivity analyzer, which is used widely in industry to determine the makeup of gases. It can identify gases by indicating the amount of heat they are able to conduct under given conditions.

As developed by Dr. Berg, the instrument measures the amount of carbon dioxide produced and the amount of oxygen consumed by the body, first during rest and then during lively exercise.

The difference in the amount of carbon dioxide produced is an indicator of energy used, which in turn is a measure of physical vigor.

By confining the test to certain types of exercise the instrument may help doctors locate areas of restricted circulation, Dr. Berg said. For example, when only step-up exercises are used, involving mainly the legs, a subnormal increase in carbon dioxide output may indicate poor blood circulation in the legs.

Instruments for determining the metabolic rate have been in medical use for many years. They utilize combinations of chemical and physical processes for measuring dioxide production.
